Synopsis:

A BIG-hearted musical comedy comes to life at Roleystone Theatre this July, featuring agoraphobia, adultery, '80s nostalgia, kleptomania, strippers and a hysterical pregnancy.

Written by David Nehls and Betsy Kelso and directed by Lorna Mackie, The Great American Trailer Park Musical is set in Armadillo Acres, Florida's most exclusive park for mobile homes.

A new tenant wreaks havoc – stripper-on-the-run Pippi comes between the Dr Phil-loving, agoraphobic Jeannie and her tollbooth collector husband and it's up to their trailer park neighbours to save the marriage.

"This show is about love, friendship and the glorious drama that is life, set to some rocking country sounds," Mackie said. "It's been described as 'South Park meets Desperate Housewives'."
